

Trinity Gomez Artist Statement

I know my purpose is to be an artist because there has never been a day in my life where I have doubted my calling to be so.

My goal through my work is to escape the triviality of culture and shed light on the simple yet vast symbolism that nature provides. I humbly have a defining purpose in life, that namely, I am not lost or trying to discover myself through my art. I am a broken human being who has experienced vindication by God. Any spark of creativity or wisdom that pours through my work is from God for God.

Though I'm in a state of unchanging core values, that is far from banality or close-mindedness. In fact, I believe this way is more sustaining and exciting. It gratifies me to work with a clear path every time I pick up the brush. The satisfaction I feel when I create is beyond what words can express. I may fail, but that only shows me where there is room to grow. That is why I love art. I love it because God loves it.

I do not want to merely feed the flames of my ego but rather cause childlike 'awe' in adults and encourage deep thought in the hearts of children.
